Montana Parent/Child Treatment and Recovery Housing Landscape Scan: August 2023

This interview project was undertaken by the Missoula County Perinatal Substance Use Network and Healthy Mothers, Healthy Babies between August 1 and August 31, 2023. During this time, 13 residences that provide treatment, recovery or sober living services to parents while also housing their children, were interviewed. The goal of these interviews was to better understand what facilities existed in Montana, how they serve Montana families, barriers they encounter, and their plans for the future. Interview methods and questions are listed in Appendix A.

Project Notes and Limitations:

This report represents a point in time snapshot of treatment and sober living facilities that allow parents and their children in the state of Montana. The information represented in this report changes quickly, and repeat interviews are recommended in the future. Due to time constraints, we were unable to connect with Katie's House in Lewistown. All other known facilities were interviewed and are represented in this report. However, it is possible that there are other facilities that we did not discover in this process.

Questions for this report were developed by members of the Missoula County Perinatal Substance Use Network, Missoula County Substance Use Disorder Connect, and Healthy Mothers, Healthy Babies: the Montana Coalition. Interviews were conducted by Zac Cannada during the month of August, 2023. Interview questions can be found in Appendix A.

We relied on self-reporting from organizations to classify programs as treatment or sober living, as well as whether or not they are faith-based. See page 5 for more detailed information on these classifications.

This report generated further questions and need for research. Any key points, noticeable gaps, or areas that need further exploration are noted at the bottom of each report section in yellow.

Gaps and Further Questions

These gaps and further questions are also listed at the end of this report in Appendix B.

Facility Types

This project discovered four licensed treatment programs, one unlicensed treatment program, one licensed mental health center offering some SUD treatment support, and six sober living facilities. One program (Love and SONshine in Billings) is not yet open, and is listed as “unknown” type. Katie’s House in Lewiston is also listed as “unknown,” as we were unable to confirm what services they offer. Two sober living facilities in Billings (Ignacia’s Legacy House and Joy Haven) serve fathers with children.

Information about facility type is based on self-reporting by each organization. While many programs indicated that they are both Treatment AND Sober Living Facilities (as indicated here), in other report sections we will classify treatment and sober living facilities separately - if a program offers treatment of any kind we included it as licensed or unlicensed treatment facility. If the program does not offer any treatment services we included it as sober living. Mountain Home Montana self-identified only as a Mental Health Center, so they are listed only as a Mental Health Center throughout the report. However, because they offer Level 1 Treatment services they are grouped with Treatment Centers when appropriate. This reflects the reality that the distinction between treatment, mental health center, and sober living facility is not always clear, and that residential services supporting those with Substance Use Disorders may be classified in multiple ways.

We also relied on self-identification to note faith-based organizations. These programs require a religious component to treatment and recovery support. We recognize that 12 Step programs include spirituality in their practices, but for this report are not including 12 Step-based programs as faith-based. Many charts in this report distinguish between faith-based and non-faith based programs due to the significant variation in programming and policies between the two categories, as well as the importance of respecting client religious preferences in program placement.

Facility Capacity

There are two sober living facilities that provide a total of 11 beds for fathers with children. Both programs are in Billings. All other treatment and sober living facilities serve mothers with children. Overall, there were 103 adult beds for parents receiving treatment or recovery housing in the state of Montana. It should be noted that some of these beds are in hybrid facilities. Some of these hybrid facilities:

- provide housing to parents with children, whether or not the parent has a substance use disorder, or;
- provide substance use disorder treatment or recovery support to individuals with and without children.

This means there is a range from 57-103 beds for parents with substance use disorders and their children. (See Figure 3 for more information.)

Key Points and Further Questions: Facility Type

- Two licensed treatment facilities serving mothers with children recently converted to facilities for single men. (Carole Graham Home in Missoula and Rimrock - Michel's House in Billings), leading to a loss of adult beds in the past year.
- There are no treatment or sober living facilities that allow children in Gallatin, Cascade, Butte-Silverbow, or Beaverhead counties, which all contain larger population areas.
- We are uncertain if there are any private-pay facilities in Montana.

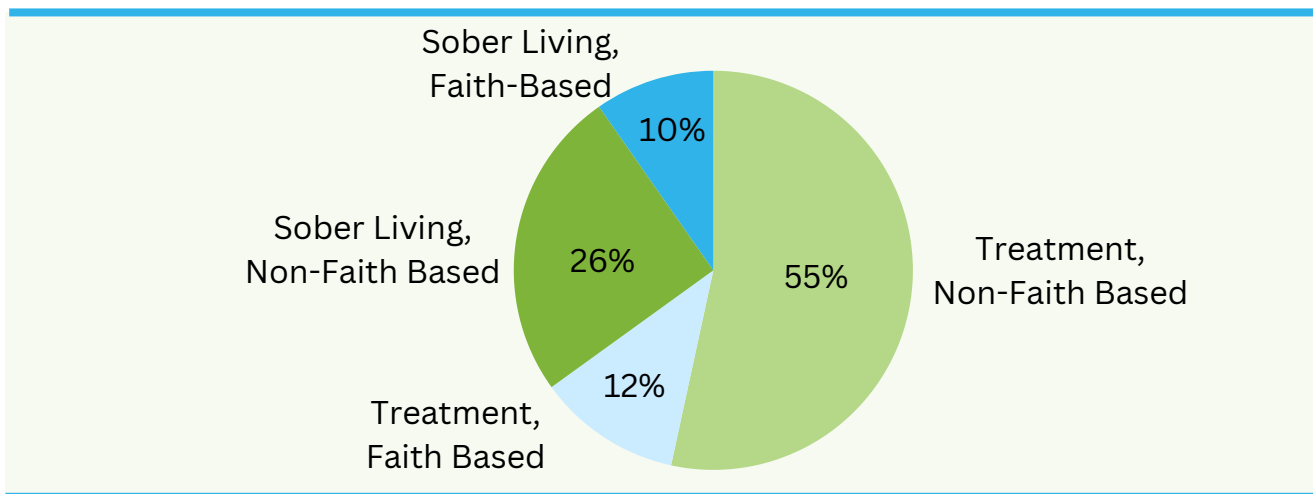

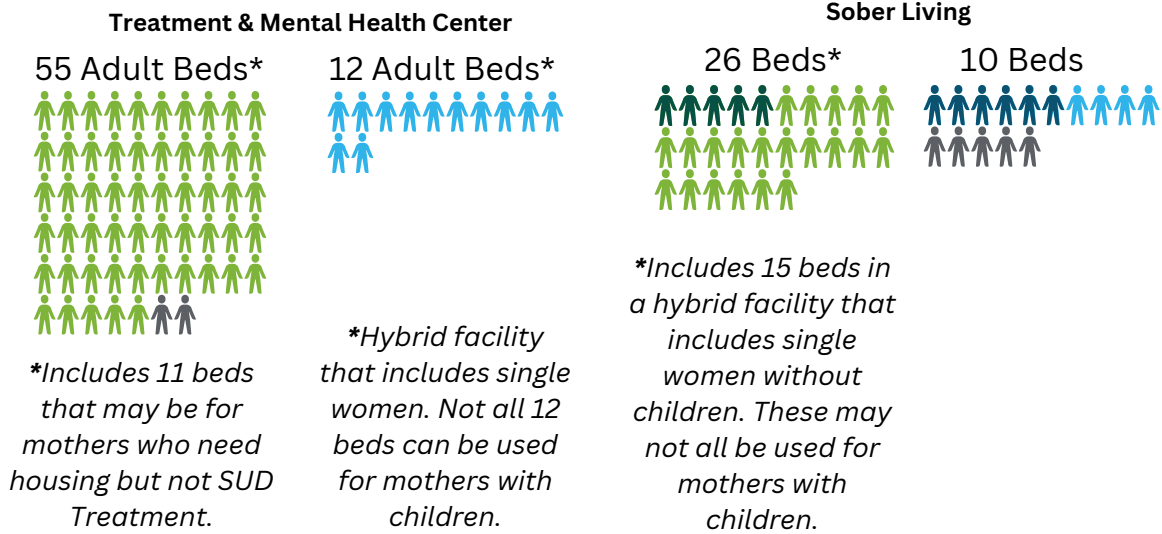

These numbers are further broken down by facility type. Treatment facilities and sober living facilities are listed separately, as they are important resources to families at different stages of recovery. Faith-based and non-faith based programs are listed separately, as this is one factor that determines a program’s fit for a family. There are currently 55 adult beds associated with licensed treatment facilities that allow children, with expansion underway to add two additional beds.

57-103 Adult Beds Total

Licensed Treatment Facilities.

Licensed treatment facilities vary in their approach to providing SUD Treatment to parents with children. Some are residential facilities offering out-patient treatment services in an attached office. Others are residential treatment facilities. Mountain Home Montana is a residential program paired with a Licensed Mental Health Center, offering Level 1 treatment services. See Figure 5 for details about levels of treatment offered at each licensed treatment facility included in this report.

Key Points and Further Questions: Licensed Treatment Facilities

- Medicaid billing alone is not a sustainable way to run a licensed residential treatment facility for parents and children. While the reimbursement rate is higher for a parent with child than a single adult, you can often fit multiple single adults in the same size room that would be occupied by a parent and child. The reimbursement rate for single adults is more sustainable.
  - What is a sustainable reimbursement rate for a parent with a child?
- Two licensed treatment facilities serving mothers with children recently converted to facilities for single men. (Carole Graham Home in Missoula and Rimrock - Michelle's House in Billings), leading to a loss of beds for adults with children in the past year.

Figure 5:

Levels of Licensed Treatment Represented in This Report

Five of the interviewed facilities are licensed treatment centers. There are four different levels of care provided by these five facilities.

11 Beds in Missoula
Beds may be used for mothers who need housing but not SUD Treatment.

28 Beds in Helena
Beds may be used for mothers who need housing but not SUD Treatment.

8 Beds in Billings
8 Beds in Helena

Funding Sources

Facilities reported they use a variety of funding sources to support their programming. The five licensed treatment providers are able to bill insurance (including Medicaid) for services. However, it was reported that Medicaid alone does not support all program expenses, and additional funding is needed to maintain programming. Eleven of 13 programs reported using grant funds, six had private donors, and four engaged in fundraising activities. Five of the sober living facilities charge rental fees. Four programs indicated they had other funding sources, which included funded staff time provided by other non-profits. Licensed treatment facilities that couple residential programs with out-patient therapy (Levels 1 & 2) were sometimes able to leverage Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) funding for the housing portion, and Medicaid reimbursement for treatment services.

Figure 6:

Funding Sources

Length of Program

Programs length varies greatly between the different facilities. Some programs have specific expectations around minimum or maximum length of stay, while others allow residents to stay as long as needed.

These interview questions did not ask about whether or not programs and clients were satisfied with the length of stay offered by programs, or if communities have sufficient services to support families after they discharge from programs. It was learned that Florence Crittenton Recovery House offers tiny homes that allow clients to transition out of their treatment program into less intensive supportive housing. It is worth exploring whether other programs offer similar step-down services, and/or if there are any barriers to creating more of these services.

Key Points and Further Questions: Length of Program

- Do other programs offer step-down or transitional housing? Are any other programs considering creating this?
- Is the current length of programming working for clients? Are there concerns about client transitions out of programs?

Figure 7:

Children Served:

Programs varied in the number of children allowed to reside with the parent receiving treatment/recovery services. There was also some variation in the age of children allowed to reside in the home.

Figure 8:

● non-faith based      ● faith-based

See key on p. 12 for Facility Names/Locations

Key Points and Further Questions: Children Served

- Most facilities are only available to families with younger children (mostly under age 5). What happens when a parent has an older child (especially older than 12)?
- Further research is needed to understand how many programs offer child care, and how child care services are funded.

Medication for Opioid Use Disorder (MOUD)

Programs expressed differing levels of support for the use of MOUD in treatment and sober living facilities with 10 out of 13 programs allowing some use. Two programs did not allow any use of MOUD. Love and SONshine is not open yet, and indicated they do not allow MOUD at this time. It is unclear if that will be the policy when they open, or if the decision has not yet been made. All five licensed treatment facilities, as well as one sober living facility allowed MOUD use without qualifications. Three sober living facilities allowed Suboxone, but specifically excluded Methadone use. Two sober living facilities required a plan to taper off of MOUD as a condition of staying at the residence. Two sober living facilities required off-site administration of MOUD. The two programs that do not allow MOUD at all are both faith-based. See Figure 9 for more information. See p. 5 for a description of treatment vs. sober living, and faith-based vs. non-faith based classifications.

Key Points and Further Questions: Medication for Opioid Use Disorder

- Licensed Treatment facilities all allow MOUD. No faith-based facilities allow indefinite use of MOUD, and three out of four do not allow residents to take MOUD.
- Why are facilities prohibiting the use of Methadone?
- What is the demand for sober living facilities that allow MOUD?

Referrals: Referral Sources

Facilities receive referrals from a variety of sources. Top referral sources listed by programs included Family Treatment Court or Drug Court and Child and Family Services. Only twelve of the thirteen programs responded to questions about referrals, as the remaining program (Love and Sonshine) is not yet open.

Figure 10:

Top Referral Sources

*The four programs listing a Federally Qualified Health Center as a top referral source were all sober living facilities in Billings receiving referrals from Rimrock.

Referrals: Referral Barriers

The most reported barrier to a successful referral was inconsistent methods for contacting clients on a wait list, with seven of the twelve programs reporting this challenge. Interview participants explained that families are sometimes experiencing homelessness, or unsafe living environments. Maintaining a cell phone or other method of contact can be impossible when someone is struggling with substance use, mental health disorders, homelessness, and parenting or any combination of those. With the long wait times for entrance to these facilities, client's contact information may change multiple times, they may not even be enrolled in the program that referred them anymore. This creates a major hurdle for reaching parents when their name comes up on the waitlist for admission eligibility that was reported by four programs. A full list of referral challenges is listed in Figure 11.

Figure 11:

Referral Barriers

 Green checks indicate the number of programs that mentioned a specific barrier.

- Application Challenges:

- Application forms have missing information
- Application not online.

- Connecting with Clients on Wait List

- No consistent way to reach clients on waitlist.
- Lack of client follow-up.

- Client is in crisis and needs services immediately, but programs have a waitlist.

- Other Challenges:

- Lack of transportation.
- Unhealthy Relationships.
- Need for and ID and background check.
- Lack of staff to help with screening.
- Client not understanding reality of program rules.

The top two referral barriers were 1) No consistent way to reach clients on waiting list, and 2) Client is in crisis and needs services immediately, but programs have a waiting list. Wait list times vary by program ranging from 1-6 months, with no programs reporting immediate openings. See Figure 12 for more detail.

Figure 12:

Waiting List by Facility Type

*When programs provided a range (i.e. 2-3 months), the maximum value was used to calculate the average wait time. If only a minimum was provide (i.e. 3+ months) the minimum was used. These programs are indicated by the gradient lines.

Referrals: Referral Successes

Five of the 12 operating programs listed a case manager, or other third party person to help with paperwork and warm handoffs as something that make referrals to the program more successful. Others mentioned:

- Involvement with Family Drug Court.
- CFS willingness to place children in home.
- an easy application and applications available online.
- A simple referral process.
- clear understanding of the level of care offered by the program.
- Completion of the required assessment.
- Interviews with families.
- A sober living residence mentioned it was helpful when parents were involved in outside treatment and when they had financial assistance.

Key Points and Further Questions: Referrals

- Most referral difficulties related to waiting lists:
  - Four programs noted that clients currently in crisis can't immediately receive care due to waiting lists.
  - Difficulty maintaining contact with program applicants was one of the top barriers named by programs (listed by 7 of the 12 open programs). Long waiting time before entering a program lead to difficulty connecting with families when space is available.
- Having a case manager or other third party assistance with enrollment was commonly listed as a help to the referral process.
- Acuity of care and persistence of client were listed as top reasons for enrolling someone from a wait list, not first come-first served.

Appendix A: Interview Methods

Interview questions were developed by staff from Beautiful Minds Recovery, Healthy Mothers, Healthy Babies, Missoula Public Health, and Missoula County Substance Use Disorder Connect at United Way of Missoula County. Known parent/child treatment and recovery facilities were interviewed first, and were asked about other known programs we needed to reach out to (snowball recruitment). Additionally, representatives from the recovery community were interviewed to gain additional insight into possible interviewees. While we believe this to be a comprehensive list of programs in the state of Montana, there may be additional programs that we are unaware of.

Initial Survey Questions

Participants were given the opportunity to fill out a simple survey with general program information prior to the interview. In all cases, the participants instead chose to answer these questions during the interview, and responses were recorded by the interviewer.

  - b. Mental Health Center
  - c. Sober Living Facility
  - d. Faith-Based Facility
  - e. Other: (text option)
7. If you are a licensed treatment facility, what ASAM Level do you provide?
8. What is the length of this program? (How many days or months can a client be at your facility?)
9. How many beds are available at this facility for clients (the parent)?
10. How many children can come with each parent resident?
  - a. 1
  - b. 2
  - c. 3
  - d. 4
  - e. 5

Appendix B: Key Points and Further Questions Summary

Key Points and Further Questions: Facility Capacity

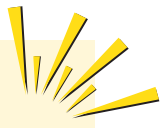

- Two licensed treatment facilities serving mothers with children recently converted to facilities for single men. (Carole Graham Home in Missoula and Rimrock - Michel's House in Billings), leading to a loss of adult beds in the past year.
- There are no treatment or sober living facilities that allow children in Gallatin, Cascade, Butte-Silverbow, or Beaverhead counties, which all contain larger population areas.
- We are uncertain if there are any private-pay facilities in Montana.

Key Points and Further Questions: Licensed Treatment Facilities

- Medicaid billing alone is not a sustainable way to run a licensed residential treatment facility for parents and children. While the reimbursement rate is higher for a parent with child than a single adult, you can often fit multiple single adults in the same size room that would be occupied by a parent and child. The reimbursement rate for single adults is more sustainable.
  - What is a sustainable reimbursement rate for a parent with a child?
- Two licensed treatment facilities serving mothers with children recently converted to facilities for single men. (Carole Graham Home in Missoula and Rimrock - Michelle's House in Billings), leading to a loss of beds for adults with children in the past year.

Key Points and Further Questions: Length of Program

- Do other programs offer step-down or transitional housing? Are any other programs considering creating this?
- Is the current length of programming working for clients? Are there concerns about client transitions out of programs?

Key Points and Further Questions: Children Served

- Most facilities are only available to families with younger children (mostly under age 5). What happens when a parent has an older child (especially older than 12)?
- Further research is needed to understand how many programs offer child care, and how child care services are funded.

Key Points and Further Questions: Medication for Opioid Use Disorder

- Licensed Treatment facilities all allow MOUD. No faith-based facilities allow indefinite use of MOUD, and three out of four do not allow residents to take MOUD.
- Why are facilities prohibiting the use of Methadone?
- What is the demand for sober living facilities that allow MOUD?

Key Points and Further Questions: Referrals
